The app is still in the development stage, but I've been working on it for about 6 months and I'm happy with the progress I've made. I have personal experience working with computers and programs and I developed TennisAce based on a variety of other programs I'd used before. This means that you won't find the same interface as other programs with it, but

Save the results of your tennis matches on your computer in a simple and manageable way. Track scores, data, preferences, records and statistics during a single or multiple matches. Record important matches and create perfect stats for every match. Speedplay Tennis Tournament manager iSpeedplay Tournaments is a cool tennis tournament scheduler and organizer that gives you the power to run your own tournaments. So whether it's a singles, doubles, mixed, or team tournament you want to stage, you can do so with this app. This app can be downloaded free of charge from the Apple store. Intuitive interface Like any good app, iSpeedplay Tournaments is available in a clean and simple interface. You'll be able to sort the different matches according to their nature or start date easily enough, even if you don't know the exact details of the tournament itself. You'll also find a neat frame that displays the various dates, times, and players involved in a given tennis tournament. Organize tournaments To start managing your tournaments, just open the "Tournaments" tab. The main interface displays the available tournaments from the version you're using. You can set up tournaments by their nature (singles, doubles, or mixed), by date (current or future) or by player (opponent, teammate, coach, etc.) If you select "By date," you'll be able to select specific dates and times for your tournament. Once you're done, click "Save" to save your updates. Manage different types of matches If you'd like to add more matches to your tournaments, you can use the "Manage Matches" interface. Simply tap on the match you want to schedule and you'll be taken to the corresponding screen. The interface shows a multitude of useful information, including the type of the match (singles, doubles, mixed, team), the nature of the match (best-of-three, best-of-five, etc.), the start and end time, and the playing schedule. You can also select a second team if there is none by default or add multiple players for a given match. The system will then work out the pairings for you and you'll only be presented with a single screen. Add videos and screenshots Not content with just managing matches and tournaments, iSpeedplay Tournaments also enables you to add videos to matches, match results, and tournaments. Once you've clicked on the information
